System

In Flames

I can not frame, that's why I lose control I aim,
I stumble and I fall
Our adaptation can't be faithful
Your world does not attract meThis is the end you see
There is no more truth in me
As if you would deserve it

You are my enemyI can't ignore the way you make me bleed I hate when you throw my thoughts against the wall

Got to wake up and make a stand
The desperation forces another mistake
I count again... I know who to blame
My life in vain

Who said I was sane

I count again... I know who to blame My life in vain

Who said I was saneFollow your instinct
It usually takes you home
Don't let these words tear you down

You see me hanging by the end of the rope I tell you...Slow I go
And the wait seems to be over.

All that I know

Is that my life has become such a waste for you
I blame and run, sadly all too often I dive into the day without your sympathy I tend to try but lack the focus Becoming a distant memoryWhat once was is quickly forgotten
All wrapped up inside

Delete all resemblance I feel your reliefSlow I go
And the wait seems to be over.

All that I know

Is that my life has become such a waste for youFollow your instinct
It usually takes you homeSlow I go
And the wait seems to be over.

All that I know

Is that my life has become such a waste for youSlow I go
And the wait seems to be over.

All that I know Is that my life has become such a waste for you

Lyrics provided by http://counterlikes.com/