

Same Old Song (feat. Juicy J)

The Weeknd

Where were you when I needed you, eight months ago
All your girlfriends talkin' bout me, now you ringin' up my phone
I bet you miss me now baby, I bet you'd kiss me now baby
Especially since you know that this ain't nothin' and I only just begun
You never thought that I would ever go this far
You said potential could never last this long
Well baby I've been alone for almost all my life
What makes you think that you can ever do me right You're the same old song
The same old song
And now I'm poppin' yea Ain't nobody showed me how
I made it big poppin' yeah Tell me how you like me now
I swear I loved you girl
And you probably went and fucked the world
Well you can take another shot everytime you hear me playin' in the club
You never thought that I would ever go this far
(never thought I'd go this far I made it)
You said that potential could never last this long
(you never thought it could last so long)
Well baby I've been alone for almost all my life
(I been alone for most of my life)
What makes that you think you can ever do me right
You're the same old song
The same old song
Listen to that shit, man
The Weeknd music make the ladies panties get wet
Jam that shit my nigga
I'm high as a motherfucka
I don't give a shit
I'm going to the strip club
I'm throwing 30 thousand dollars nigga, 30 thousand
Fuck that shit
Spend that shit nigga, it's Christmas
Shut the fuck up
We trippy mane
