Something

Escape the Fate

So now you're running
It's hard to see clearly
When I make you angry
You're stuck in the pastAnd now you're screaming
So can you forgive me?
I've treated you badly
But I am still hereSometimes I wonder
Why I'm still waiting
Sometimes I'm shaking

That's how you make me Sometimes I question Why I am still here

Sometimes I think I am going crazy

Can you help me understand?

And now you wish that you meant something

And now you wish that you meant something to somebody else

And now you wish that you met someone

And now you wish that you meant something to somebody else (someone) (something to somebody else) You look at me through clouded eyes

I know you see through my lies See the sky, see the stars All of this could be ours Out of sight, out of mind

We've been through this a thousand times

Turn your back and then you make me feel so crazyCan you help me understand?

And now you wish that you meant something

And now you wish that you meant something to somebody else And now you wish that you met someone

And now you wish that you meant something to somebody else You know I would wait forever

Yes, I would wait (I would wait)You know I would wait forever Yes, I would wait

And now you wish that you meant something

And now you wish that you meant something to somebody else And now you wish that you met someone

And now you wish that you meant something to somebody else And I'm the one that should mean something

But still you wish that you meant something to somebody else

Something to somebody else, something to somebody else

Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by http://counterlikes.com/