

Secondhand Smoke

Kelsea Ballerini

Sometimes you could hear a pin drop or the ticking of the clock
Between the surface conversation, no matter what they were saying
They never talked Sometimes I would hear 'em screaming, when they thought that I was sleeping They'd just fight about whatever, I don't know if they ever had a reason Am I the product of a problem that I couldn't change?
Got his eyes, got her hair
So do I get their mistakes? I know that you can't walk across a bridge that's already burned, so
What am I supposed to do?, I can't help that they chose
To breathe it in, but I don't wanna choke
On that secondhand smoke
Sometimes I hear myself saying hand-me-down words It's so easy to forget that he ain't him and I ain't her And when I think the fighting has to end in a goodbye,
I wanna prove me wrong, but I'm scared I'll prove me right, 'cause I know that you can't walk across a bridge that's already burned, so
What am I supposed to do?, I can't help that they chose
To breathe it in, but I don't wanna choke
On that secondhand smoke Oh, no Will I be better, find forever, be the one to shake the habit, Break away from broken things, and rise above the ashes?
I know that you can't walk across a bridge that's already burned, so
What am I supposed to do?, I can't help that they chose
To breathe it in, but I don't wanna choke
No, I ain't gonna choke
On that secondhand smoke Oh
