

Home Is In Your Eyes

Greyson Chance

My heart beats a little bit slower
These nights are a little bit colder
Now that you're gone
My sky seem a little bit darker
Sweet dreams come a little bit harder
I hate when you're gone...Everyday time's passing growing tired of all this traffic
Take me away to where you are
I wanna be holding your hand in the sand by the tire swing Where we used to be... Baby you and me.
I travelled a thousand miles so just I can see you smile
Feel so far away when you cry, 'cause home is in your eyes.
Your heart beats a little bit faster
There's tears were there used to be laughter
Now that I'm gone...
You talk just a little bit softer Things take just a little bit longer, you hate that I'm gone. Everyday time's passing growing tired of all this traffic
Take me away to where you are
I wanna be holding your hand in the sand by the tire swing
Where we used to be... Baby
You and me.
I travelled a thousand miles so just I can see you smile Feel so far away when you cry, cause
home is in your eyes.
If I could write another ending...
This wouldn't even be our song I'd find a way that we would never ever be apart
Right from the start.
I wanna be holding your hand in the sand by the tire swing
Where we used to be... Baby
You and me.
I travelled a thousand miles so just I can see you smile
Feel so far away when you cry, 'cause home is in your eyes
I wanna be holding your hand in the sand by the tire swing
Where we used to be, baby; you and me.
I travelled a thousand miles so just I can see you smile
Feel so far away when you cry
'Cause home is in your eyes.

Lyrics provided by <http://counterlikes.com/>