Natural Disaster

Zac Brown Band

> Had lips like candy Hair floated like water Skin like velvet made The whole damn world slow down She was a preacher's daughter Never did what daddy taught her And the rebel in her soul Brought her to meThe river was cold And the river was wide She flowed from the mountain Straight across the great divide And her heart ran cold But her love runs deep She's fire on the mountain Wrecking everyone she meets She's like rain when she rolls in But that sunshine in her thunder Makes the loneliest heart wonder If the ride is worth the pain Might not be storm clouds inside Oh but don't you worry friend She's coming around the bend She's holding lightning in both handsLord please know It's not time for me to go The river has my heart She's the keeper of my soul On one side of the water Sweet everlasting grace The other side could end your life Or steal your breath away She's like rain when she rolls in But that sunshine in her thunder Makes the loneliest heart wonder If the ride is worth the pain Might not be storm clouds inside Oh but don't you worry friend She's coming around the bend She's holding lightning in both handsShe's a natural disaster She'll tear the land in two She's running to be running Cause it's all she knows to do She's a tumbleweed rolling Sal

A river running wild
A hurricane blowing
She's the calm after the storm
Under an Appalachian sunset skyShe's like rain when she rolls in
But that sunshine in her thunder
Makes the loneliest heart wonder
If the ride is worth the pain
Might not be storm clouds inside
Oh but don't you worry friend
She's coming around the bend
She's holding lightning in both handsShe's like rain She rolls in
But there's sunshine in her thunder
She's coming around the band
She's holding lightning in both hands
Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941 . Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by http://counterlikes.com/

