

Break Your Halo

Andy Black

Life is the pain, of the pictures in my mind
The fear is a child I left behind
I'm never ashamed of the scars you see across me face
I'm only afraid that this will change
I'll break your halo, when you try to rise above me I'll show you my own hell, I could reach right down and pull you out
If i could change this life, I would make things right
I would keep my shit together
I'll break your halo I'm the only hope you've got to see the light
My heart grows numb, as the tide rolls in
Down the waves some crashing down
They swallow your dreams, and the love that kept you hanging on Without my voice you'll lose yourself
I'll break your halo, when you try to rise above me
I'll show you my own hell, I could reach right down and pull you out
If I could change this life I would make things right
I would keep my shit together I'll break your halo, I'm the only hope you've got
All I see is you giving it up
I can't breath when we're not together
What we had was just perfect enough Taking its toll can last forever
And I would give my life just to make things right
Gotta keep my shit together
All i want is another one shot
All i need is a broken heart (All i need is one more broken heart)
I'll break your halo, when you try to rise above me
I'll show you my own hell, I could reach right down and pull you out
If i could change this life i would make things right
I would keep my shit together
I'll break your halo
I'm the only hope you've got to see the light
See the light
