Smith Hill

Deer Tick

Elbows on the window sill My head against the pane You've seen so many grow and die But you forgot most of their namesSo I fire that arrow into the great big sky And I hope that it never comes down Unless you're coming with it It's better with you around I could drink myself to death tonight Or I could stand and give a toast To those who made it out alive It's you I'll miss the mostBut tonight I'll see my sweetheart I've got a fifty dollar bill But somewhere in her weak heart She knows I never will Oh love, it's hard to hide it True love, it's hard to find it Though I was once beside it I've fallen far behind itFrom a tiny room up on Smith Hill It's easy to disappear It's easier to run off hiding Then say "I don't want you here" I can't stand to face the facts It'd only leave you hurt I don't care much for what you have to say But I'd like to know what you heardOh love, it's hard to hide it True love, it's hard to fid it Though I once was beside it I've fallen far behind it It's a long way free You can't tread on me And in the morning when you're crying You'll see Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by http://counterlikes.com/