

More Than I Should (Encore)

Hunter Hayes

Ooh yeah Wasted time and money
Honey, treatin' you like a queen
I might as well have just thrown
Matches at a tank of gasoline Well, it all went up in a ball of flames
Yeah, girl you torched me good
Yeah, I got burned and learned
That I loved you more than I should 'Cause my heart said a long time ago
Buddy' tuck your tail and run
'Cause it ain't love
When you're stuck on the wrong end of the gun
Well, you put your finger on that trigger
And you shot me where I stood
I found out the hard way
I loved you more than I should Ooh yeah Well, curse the man
Who made the sweet perfume that cast the spell
And curse the night
That made us kiss beneath the star that fell And curse the man before me
Didn't warn me when he could
And curse me most of all
For loving you more than I should 'Cause my heart said a long time ago
Buddy' tuck your tail and run
'Cause it ain't love
When you're stuck on the wrong end of the gun
Well, you put your finger on that trigger
And you shot me where I stood
I found out the hard way
I loved you more than I should Ooh, more than I should, yeah Last night I found myself
Inside the strangest, sweetest dream
You were standin' arms
Wide open right in front of me The closer I moved toward you
The further away you stood
I woke up and whispered
"I loved you more than I should"
They'll write on my gravestone
I loved you more than I should More than I should, yeah Ooh Yeah
Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by <http://counterlikes.com/>