Dry Town

Jill Phillips

I can feel the sun beating on my face
And my feet are covered with the burning sand
My Garden of Eden has been replaced
By the drought that comes with the desert landNo fruit trees and no river bends
You could walk miles and see no signs of life

But I still believe this drought will end

Even if there are no clouds in sightLike a hard rain in a dry town

You bring life to this dead ground And You are hope for this run down

Old dry town

Sometimes I run so far from You Sometimes I trade my joy for pain

Sometimes I know what I should do

But to follow through I need Your strengthLike a hard rain in a dry town

You bring life to this dead ground And You are hope for this run down Old dry town

Like a hard rain in a dry town You bring life to this dead ground

You are hope for this run down

Old dry townYes You are hope for this run down Old dry town
