

Knocking on Your Heart

Maggie Lindemann

Nothing makes it hard to breathe like being in your company
When you've got someone new around your arms
I thought'd I'd be over it
To see you lock with other lips
I guess I'm just no good at moving on
I always tried to tell myself that I'd fall in love with someone else
But oh, my stubborn heart is set on you
And every night I fall asleep
Just so I can see you in my dreams
And now, I think you ought to know the truth
Are you listening
I'm knocking on your heart, could you let me in?
Tell me I'm the one and I've always been
Cause I don't wanna wonder if we'll over meet again
I'm knocking on your heart, could you let me in?
When you left I made you swear
Our love would last, no matter where
And we would call each other every night
But nights turned into weeks, turned into months we didn't speak
And so, we lost our sense of love over time
I always tried to tell myself that I'd fall in love with someone else
But oh, my stubborn heart is set on you
And every night I fall asleep
Just so I can see you in my dreams
And now I think you ought to know the truth
Are you listening
I'm knocking on your heart, could you let me in?
Tell me I'm the one and I've always been
Cause I don't wanna wonder if we'll over meet again
I'm knocking on your heart, could you let me in?
I'm knocking on your heart, could you let me in?
Are you listening
I'm knocking on your heart, could you let me in?
Tell me I'm the one and I've always been
Cause I don't wanna wonder if we'll over meet again
I'm knocking on your heart, could you let me in?

Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by <http://counterlikes.com/>