

A Car, a Torch, a Death

twenty one pilots

The air begins to feel a little thin
As I start the car and then I begin To add the miles piled up behind me I barely feel a smile deep inside me
And I begin to envy the headlights driving south
I want to crack the door so I can just fall out
But then I remember when you packed my car
You reached in the back and buckled up your heart
For me to drive away with I began to understand

Why God died
The demon sat there waiting on her porch
It was a little dark so we held a makeshift torch
And when my car was far out of sight
He crept in her room and stayed there for the night

And then I felt chills in my bones
The breath I saw was not my own
I knew my skin that wrapped my frame

Wasn't made to play this game

And then I saw Him, torch in hand
He laid it out, what he had planned

And then I said, I'll take the grave

Please, just send them all my way

And then I felt chills in my bones

The breath I saw was not my own

I knew my skin that wrapped my frame

Wasn't made to play this game

And then I saw Him, torch in hand
He laid it out, what he had planned

And then I said, I'll take the grave

Please, just send them all my way

I began to understand

Why God died

The air begins to feel a little thin
As we're waiting for the morning to begin

But for now you told me to hold this jar

And when I looked inside, I saw

It held your heart

For me to walk away with

I began to understand

Why God died
