

Hummingbird

Kyla La Grange

Oh baby I'm a light left on
Still waiting for the moment
Burn steady and the fuse is gone
High and heavy, and I've blown it Oh baby I'm a flightless bird
Crying out to the treetops
Wings heavy and my voice unheard
Keep saying I'm enough, oh Watch your step
Find your love
Use your legs
Keep it up Brace your heart
Know yourself
Face the dark
Ask for help
Like a hummingbird I'll hover
But never taste the fruit
Like the memory of a lover
That flickers into view
And all the things you wanted, that kept on calling you
And you try, but cannot choose Oh baby I'm an unmade bed
Uncovered in the half light
Still warm from you sleeping here
So empty that I could cry
And oh baby this is what you say
I'm never gonna not run
You never would've killed us dead
You were right I'm a shotgun Watch your step
Find your love
Use your legs
Keep it up
Like a hummingbird I'll hover
But never taste the fruit
Like the memory of a lover
That flickers into view
And all the things you want to, that kept on calling you
And you try, but cannot choose No don't don't let me let you down
Don't don't let me let you down
Don't don't let me let you down, no don't No don't don't let me let you down
Don't don't let me let you down
Don't don't let me let you down, no don't Oh I still want you baby
So help me stay from words
Oh I still want you baby
So help me stay for worse Like a hummingbird I'll hover

But never taste the fruit
Like the memory of a lover
That flickers into view
And all the things you want to, that kept on calling you
And you try, but cannot choose Like a hummingbird I'll hover
But never taste the fruit
Like the memory of a lover
That flickers into view
And all the things you want to, that kept on calling you
And you try, but cannot choose
