

Feels Like a Woman

Zucchero, Lester Snell & New Orleans Gospel Choir

This is a man who needs a woman
I'm not afraid to say what I feel
I'll never be unfaithful
I've been wrong and lived the lonely life
Silence is loud without her whispers
My body craves her touch
Such are my prayers every break of dawn
To open my eyes and see her by my side
When the earth shakes and the tide breaks
Feels like a woman
So much power takes my breath away
When the sun beats satin blue sheets
Feels like a woman
I am sweating, begging her to stay with me
This is a man who needs a woman
In all of my world, in my nights
If I don't live up to this promise
Then I am wrong, I have no right
When the earth shakes and the tide breaks
Feels like a woman
So much power takes my breath away
When the sun beats satin blue sheets
Feels like a woman
I am sweating, begging her to stay with me
When the earth shakes and the tide breaks
Feels like a woman
So much power takes my breath away
When the sun beats satin blue sheets
Feels like a woman
I am sweating, begging her to stay with me
This is a man who needs a woman
I'm not afraid to say what I feel
I'll never be unfaithful
And I'll be one with no demands
