Dispatch the Troops

Matisyahu

Daughter of Zion
Once precious princess
Left her father's house
To walk streets that never rest
Maybe they'll hear me in the metropolis
So I'm sending out an SOS
Fighting with her Ta
She wants out of this mess
And those big city lights
Might brighten up the darkness
You know that I'm tired and you know that I'm stressed
You can't stop me and you can't stop this
You could call the police try to make an arrest
Today is the day that I repossess

Leaving on the first bus that I can get

Now its rings around the eyes sopping wet from rain droplets

Window shopping for some solace

No address and penniless

That's the price that youpay for running away from the stress Feeling the pain likes the dance by the DJ Reminds me of a time when things were ok

Frightened by her own shadow
Now she wants to go home
Many names for the one G-d
Trotting on, though the facade
You were all my children
Got a dig for that feeling

Love will break through the concealment Strip away the serpent's skin

We came to win

Dispatch the troops

Send out the captain

My gem is held captive in the dungeon

Don't come back again until you end the mission

If it takes a long time Don't lose the vision

If you're stuck

Check the blueprint

Look within

Reflection

Got to find the rhythm

Won't you please return child

Where you been?

She says I can't come home because he won't let me in
And besides we don't need no more friction
Used to look so nice, how'd you get so thin?
With a heart like ice, it's a heart of sin
Skin white like a ghost with a pale complexion
Pray to G-d for the dead we need resurrection
Don't you know wherever you go thick and thin
You are still my children
Since you've been gone my soul's been hearting
Wondering through this world
We are all just boys and girls
Many names for one G-d
Trotting on, through the facade
