

Elliot Moss

Hide all the keys, and seal our windows
 'Cause I'm going to war
 Don't hold your breath waiting for me
 'Cause I may never come home Hide all the keys, and seal our windows
 'Cause I'm going to war
 Don't hold your breath waiting for me
 'Cause I may never come home No, I may never come home Hide all the keys, and seal our windows
 'Cause I'm going to war
 Don't hold your breath waiting for me
 'Cause I may never come home
 Leave all your bags, and head for the water
 Chase the lies into the sea
 Don't hold your breath waiting for me
 'Cause I may never come home No, I may never come home
 'Cause I may never come home
 (No, I may never come home)
 Don't hold your breath waiting for me
 'Cause I may never come home No, I may never come home
 I may never come home
 (No, I may never come home)
 Don't hold your breath waiting for me
 'Cause I may never come home No, home
 No, home
 No, home
 No, home
 I hear a train that'll take me some place
 Farther from the shore
 Don't hold your breath waiting for me
 'Cause the ocean needs you more Leave all your bags, and head for the water
 Chase the lies into the sea
 Don't hold your breath waiting for me
 'Cause I may never come home No, I may never come
 I may never come home
 No, I may never come home
 I may never come home (No, I may never come home)
 Don't hold your breath waiting for me
 'Cause I may never come home
 No, I may never come home No, home
 No, home
 No, home
 No, home No, I may never come home

No, I may never come home
No, I may never come home
No, I may never come home One hundred men, raise your heads up
'Cause we're going to war
Open your eyes, and steady your hands
'Cause we may never come home Hide all the keys, and seal our windows
'Cause I'm going to war
Don't hold your breath waiting for me
'Cause I won't ever come home
