Hope Is the Anthem

Switchfoot

Sometimes what you need is what you fight Like a wounded man out on the run Like shadows hiding from the light But your love is what I was running fromHope's a seed you have to sow When you let it go it comes to life So you stretch your arrows on the bow And you pull them back and watch them flyMy heartbeat, my oxygen My banner, my home My future, my song Your hope is the anthem of my soul My lungs and I were born to fight Sometimes I'm not sure what I'm fighting for But death ain't the only end in sight Cause this ain't a battle it's a lifelong warMy heartbeat, my oxygen My banner, my home My freedom, my song Your hope is the anthem of my soulYour hope is the anthem of my soulMy heart is beating like a blown speaker The spirit is willing but the flesh is weaker A distortion pedal and a pair of wings And an anthem played on broken stringsMy heartbeat, my oxygen My banner, my home My future, my song Your hope is the anthem Your hope is the anthem of my soul Your hope is the anthem of my soulYeah could you make me whole? (like holy water) Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by http://counterlikes.com/