

The Knife

Kyla La Grange

One night you got into my head with the cold bright fear that stroke me down
And your body lay heavy in our bed with your blood stained tears on your chest
Our love is never what it was Never born enough to carry us,
In the beginning I wanted you so much
Fire and dirt, then dust So love, would you saved her
Is she everything you bet upon your life!
So love, did you need her
Is it all because you fell against the knife
And now, can you hold her
Do you see her around the shadow of the knife
So love, have you lost her,
Does it turn you up inside!
One day, I'll sleep and never wake
And they outtake the color from my face
This is all a pay for my mistakes,
Old things weirder then drink So love, would you saved her
Is she everything you bet upon your life!
So love, did you need her
Is it all because you fell against the knife
And now, can you hold her
Do you see her around the shadow of the knife
So love, have you lost her,
Does it turn you up inside! Will we hold your hand tonight
And how I'd hold your hand tonight
Did it was so hard to keep her
Did you tried so hard despite!
Was it hurt old heart that freed her?
Come song, tight
So love, would you saved her
Is she everything you bet upon your life!
So love, did you need her
Is it all because you fell against the knife?
And now, can you hold her
Do you see her around the shadow of the knife
So love, have you lost her,
Does it turn you up inside!
Does it turn you up inside!
