

Born Slippy

Albert Hammond Jr.

Sometimes the sun goes behind the clouds
You forget the warmth that could be found
 Born slippy, Born slippy
If you hear a knock on the door in the night
 It has come to stay and steal the light
 Born slippy, born slippy
 And the years gone by
 and the maid's been gone
she remembered to leave the keys at home
there are more of us then there are of them
 Everytime you stop, I begin Arms were falling off as heads rolled away
 What did they want?
 Why wont they say?
 Born slippy, born slippy
 What happened? I'm so excited
 What happened? I'm so excited
 What happened? I'm so excited
 What happened? I'm so excited
 What happened? I'm so excited
 What happened? I'm so excited
 What happened? I'm so excited
 What happened? I'm so excited
 And the years gone by
 and the maid's been gone
she remembered to leave the keys at home
there are more of us then there are of them
