Not Your Enemy

Jesse McCartney

I'm sorry for all the times that he lied
And left your heart hangin'
I can't imagine what that feels like
But that was another placeAnd that was another time
It's not fair to blame me for all his crimes
Just for a minute give me a chanceLet me inside just for a minute
Baby just for a moment

Let me prove I'll do things right

Lay down your guard

And show me your colours

Don't fight it anymore

Show me you're with me

Open your arms

I'm not like the others

So don't fight it anymore noWhat will it take for me to make you see I'm not your enemy

I'm for out on the day that he leftI wasn't even there

It's become a nightmare

But I'll never rest till you give your all

I'll take nothing less till I hear happily ever after

The end

Just for a minute give me a chanceLet me inside just for a minute

Baby just for a moment

Let me prove I'll do things right

Lay down your guard

And show me your colors

Don't fight it anymore

Show me you're with me

Open your arms

I'm not like the others

So don't fight it anymore no

What will it take for me to make you see

I'm not your enemy

How do you expect things to get any better

If you keep me on the sideline

Don't you know there's a million things I wanna do

But you gotta meet me halfway you gotta try

Lay down your guard

And show me your colors

Don't fight it anymore

Show me you're with me

Open your arms

I'm not like the others So don't fight it anymore no What will it take for me to make you see I'm not your enemy Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.
